Rhianna focuses her practice on the defense of health care providers and facilities in medical liability litigation, licensing and disciplinary litigation, and related appeals. She has an extensive background in general liability defense, and has represented clients in complex negligence litigation, employment litigation, and other matters. Rhianna has not only an active trial practice, but also a growing appellate practice as well. She has argued cases a number of times before the Washington Court of Appeals, and has briefed cases on behalf of her clients, and as amicus on behalf of the Washington Defense Trial Lawyers, before the Washington Supreme Court.

Rhianna is also in her fourth year serving as an instructor for the health law program at the University of Washington School of Law, teaching the medical malpractice course.

After graduating from the University of Washington School of Law in 2006, Rhianna clerked for the Honorable Stephen J. Dwyer of the Washington Court of Appeals, Division I. Rhianna has been selected to the Washington Super Lawyers “Rising Stars” list every year between 2011 and 2017.
